To determine the role of ATM kinase (H-, K-, and L-kinase domains) in the central nervous system (CNS) of multiple sclerosis (MS) patients. We evaluated ATM protein expression in the CNS of MS patients, healthy controls, and patients with other neurological disease (OND). Cerebrospinal fluid (CSF) ATM protein levels were quantitated using laser densitometry. We also determined the ATM kinase activity present in CSF using a synthetic peptide substrate. ATM protein was detectable in all CSF samples, with no significant difference in the CSF ATM protein levels between MS, OND, and control subjects. Further, no differences were observed when stratifying by relapsing-remitting (RRMS) or primary-progressive (PPMS) MS versus chronic progressive (CPMS) disease subtypes. However, this analysis was underpowered because of small numbers. ATM kinase activity was not detectable in any of the CSF samples. CSF ATM expression and activity are unaltered in MS compared with OND and control subjects. Furthermore, no correlation of CSF ATM levels with disease severity in MS was observed 09e8f5149f

Find the best games for you to play on the fastest PC gaming website in the world. Featured games, great playability, user-friendly interface and high speed of Game Machine Newcastle United manager Steve Bruce has admitted his club have to do business in January, but insisted on the deadline day he is optimistic of landing the "brass ring" of Champions League qualification. Last week, Newcastle struggled to defeat Cardiff City 2-1 at St James' Park, which saw them slip to fourth in the Barclays Premier League. And Bruce, who has been backed by his players as a man who listens to them and a man who will deliver, now has little time to recover from their loss to the Bluebirds. Rather than mopping up the mess left behind by other clubs, Bruce must settle for being one of a group of clubs battling for the final three Champions League qualifying spots. He said: "I'm obviously quite optimistic about it. This is a couple of weeks away, we're not thinking about that stage, we're going to make sure this club is ready for when we get there. "We've got some time to get our feet right and then we'll start thinking about the Champions League. "I'm sure there's been lots of other teams who have said similar things [to us] but we'll just play the game and enjoy it. "I'm quite optimistic that we can get there, we haven't been disappointed with our recent performances. We've been very good in the last three or four games, we've just got to find ways of winning our games. "In football, you're only as good as your last game and hopefully we can be the side that goes and wins the game on Friday." Bruce is making it clear Newcastle are not thinking about the new Barclays Premier League format that will kick-in from next season as they believe they can qualify for Europe this term. Instead, he was asked about a potential repeat of the story of last week, when the Premier League's top four clubs ended up on equal points just a week on from the previous season. He added: "Yeah, there'll be a few teams like that, probably the top three or four teams are going to be equal on points and then there'll be a massive pool of teams who will have been winning games. "Yes, I'm looking at the bottom half, looking at the top three or four, they will be clearly the top six at the end of
